John & Edward:
THE GRAFTON
BARBER
Creators of the JEDWARD

everyone wants a "john and edward"

it's...er, hair-raising!

You've seen Jenifer Aniston's "Rachel" but that hair craze was nothing compared with the one sparked by John & Edward. Dublin hairdressers THE GRAFTON BARBER have already had Clients coming in asking for a recreation of the dubs trademark Spikes. But owner Connor Mc Allister warns it's a high maintenance do. "High fronts are back," he says. "We even have a new GHD especially For men who want a hairstyle like this. Maybe I'll send one to the twins." Needless to say, John and Edward are as confident about their barnets as they are about everything else, telling heat, "everyone goes on about the hair - it's not like we're style icons or anything, but if everyone started Getting it done that would be cool"

LOUIS: "DANNII IS MY FRIEND"

THE X FACTOR EXCLUSIVE

good news! their silly tiff is over...

Remember when Louis and Dannii hated each other? Wasn't it sad (although also quite entertaining) when Louis reduced her to tears on the show? Well, those days are over. According to Louis, who spoke exclusively to heat, Dannii's love life has

"She's in love and it shows - she is so happy," he said. "Kris [Smith, Dannii's boyfriend] has been a really good influence on her and our relationship is really great now. We probably hang out together more than anyone. Everything is great this year between us and I only wish that it had been like that in the last two years."

Has Louis got anything rude to say about his former nemesis? Apparently not. "She looks better than ever, sounds better than ever and she's in a really good place," he said, adding, "It makes everything so much easier when you get backstage. There haven't been any problems between the judges. I really feel as though Dannii has completely come into her own."

So no more on-screen rows between the judges? Hooray! Or should that be boo?
